Dear Dave:

I was of course very sorry we will not have the pleasure of working with you here next year although I certainly understand the temptations of Hawaii and wish you every success there. I hope that despite the 4,000 or so miles distance it will still be possible to collaborate on a few projects -- perhaps the Wright effect that you, Joe and I spent time on many months ago or perhaps the theoretical implications of your Venus results. You've been an excellent student, your thesis is first class and I'm happy to have had something to do with influencing you in what I am certain will be an extremely productive career in planetary astronomy.

With best wishes,

Cordially,

Carl Sagan
